Police Demand the Basis of Rev. Fifth Warders Who Have Memo- His Devices for Smuggling "Red Eberman's Charges.

On Specific Information an Investi- Another Complication in the Congation Will He Ordered.

Police Supt. Campbell, of Brooklyn, has taken up the gauntlet thrown down by certain Brooklyn clergymen, and now challenges Rev. Clarence E. Eberman, pastor of the Moravian Church on Jay street, to prove the charge or even give the information that will make possible an finyestigation of the assertion that the police authorities of Brooklyn are in league with violators of the law.

The ministerial hot shot poured into the Police Department has been unusually severe during the last few weeks, and a particularly scorehing lecture by Dominie Eberman has had the effect of forcing the authorities to talk back. Mr. Eberman devoted nearly an entire lecture in the Cumberland Street Reformed Catholic Church to Boss McLaughlin and his followers, and wound up with the following specific charge: with the following specific charge: Here is an incident which, if true-up with the following specific charge:

"Here is an incident which, if true—and I have no reason to doubt it—brands the authorities as in league with violators of the law. I will not quote my authority, but I have every reason to believe that the information is reliable:

"An establishment in the neighborhood of Myrtic avenue and Washington street has been in the habit of opening its doors on Sunday for traffic. A new policeman was assigned to the post in that vicinity some time ago. He saw the store open, and, being impressed with the fact that he was employed to de his duty, he informed the proprietor with the fact that he was employed to do his duty, he informed the proprietor that the store must be closed. The proprietor reluctantly acquiesced, and the law seemingly triumphed.

"The sequel, however, shows that the policeman had failed to get proper instructions, for the next day he was assigned to duty somewhere in South Brooklyn, no doubt to a place where the wicked cease from troubling, at least to a place where he could not interfer, with the friendly and fraternal relations which exist between policemen who have the inside information and proprietors who have the inside influence."

proprietors who have the inside influence."

"That is not fair," said Supt. Campbell when told of Rev. Eberman's lecture. "While the charge is seemingly specific, it does not give us anything on which to base an investigation. If Mr. Eberman will give me something more definite or the name of his informant, from whom I can get information, there will be a thorough investigation.

"The trouble is, some preachers accept rumors as facts and, being truthful themselves, do not think it possible for any one else to make a false charge. I suppose Mr. Eberman is sincere and believes what he says; but his advisers are wrong. The Lommissioner makes transfers, but you can rest assured that no interference occurred with an officer for doing his duty."

Against Her Busband. Against Her Busband.

Frederick Al. 1, of 687 Flushing avenue, Wilflams Jurg, was held for trial in the Lee Avenue Court to-day on a charge of cruelty to children. His wife went to the office of the Children's Society yesterday and formally complained of him. A warrant was sworn out, and Abel was arrested this morning.

"My husband has treated me cruelly for many months," said Mrs. Abel. "He seldom strikes me, but, knowing how I love the children, he vents his spite on them. Sunday he took a broom handle; he struck Katie, aged seven, over the head, snifeting a severe wound. But this is only the wind-up to a long career of cruelty."

Abel endeavored to lay all the blame in his wife. "I have been to the Society's office on many occasions to complain of my wife," he said. "It is she who abuses the children. I admit hitting Katle with a broom handle, but it was an accident, for I threw the broom at my wife after she had exasperated me beyond endurance."

If I had nothing clee to do three or four hours of steady work daily would quite suffice me for literary purposes. I never, in writing a novel, have any plot, and I never even plan out a chapter. It all comes to me as I write. The same thing in my lectures and speaches! I never prepare either the one or the other until I am actually on my feet and speaking the opening sentences, and then, perhaps, I mentally group a few leading and central ideas.

"Some of my novels are decidedly political, still I do not always feel called upon to fight, for my own special side in my books. For some reason the residents of the village did not take any notice of the charter until 1830, when an act to amend it was passed. This movement met with considerable opposition from the old residents, who did not want to be becomerated. incorporated.

An election for the Board of Trustees and town officers was held, however. The Trustees had considerable trouble in collecting town taxes, as the opponents to the charter claimed that the Trustees had no legal right to collect them.

Trustees had no legal right to collect them.

David Joline, a wealthy resident of the village, refused to pay his taxes, and President Barnes, of the Board of Trustees, had his plane sold to satisfy the taxes. This enraged Mr. Joline, who considered the action of the Trustees an outrage. He, with a number of the other taxpayers, then set to work and had the charter set aside.

Street Men Fall Out.

The employees of the Ninth avenue, the Foulevard, and the West Forty-second street surface railroads are at loggerheads, and it requires but little provocation to precipitate a fight whenever any of the men meet.

The trouble dates back to the time of the first heavy snowfall of the season, but a conflict of the rival forces was averted until yesterday.

It appears that employees of the Ninth avenue line, in cleaning the tracks at Fifty-fourth street, shovelled the snow onto the Boulevard track, blocking the way. way.

The West Forty-second street employees have a similar grievance. Yenterday the rival forces met, and a fight ensued.

When time was called by a policeman and an inspection was made, it was found that honors were about even, each side having several black eyes and numerous cuts and bruises.

This little scrimmage, it is said, has whetted the desire of the men for revenge, and another meeting may occur, with more serious results.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—Lewis Abraham, a Washington lawyer, to-day teatified before the committee investigating the Whiskey Trust that the adulteration and sale of imitation goods was on the increase. The business caused a large loss to the Government.

The imitation goods paid an internal revenue tax of about 90 cents a gallon. The imported paid about $2.50 a gallon. The output of these imitations decreased the imported tone internal revenue and the import duty.

Deputy Commissioner of Internal Revenue Wilson, the next witness, was asked if he could suggest some change in the law to protect consumers against compounded goods.

Mr. Wilson replied that the law could be so changed as to require all compounded goods to be stamped. He thought this plan would work, as the manufacturers of pure goods would watch for and report violations of it.
